Jarred MacGillivray Pty Ltd has undertaken to plead guilty to a breach of sections 19(1) and 32 of the Work Health and Safety Act 2012 (SA) in that it failed to ensure that its workers used a system of work which minimised the risk of a 28m timber framework falling by requiring that all props used as temporary bracing not only be secured to a stud or top plate of the wall frame, but also at the base of the prop to the slab, the ground, or some other immovable object.

The purpose of this enforceable undertaking is to set out the manner in which Jarred MacGillivray Pty Ltd will also implement into its policies and procedures how safety will be taken into account when determining:

1. The sequence in which wall frames are erected;
2. Where internal walls can be used for bracing; and
3. Where temporary bracing will be used, to ensure that adequate bracing is provided at all times that first fix carpentry is being performed.

GI(b) the details of the alleged contravention

The regulator has alleged that Jarred MacGillivray Pty Ltd has contravened the Work Health and Safety Act (SA) 2012 on 9 August 2016.

It is alleged that Jarred MacGillivray Pty Ltd has contravened sections 19(1) and 32 of the Work Health and Safety Act 2012 (SA), in that it failed to provide and maintain, so far as reasonably practicable, a safe system of work, in that it failed to require a construction sequence designed to minimise the amount of unsupported framework, such that whenever an eastern wall frame could be supported by an adjacent perpendicular internal wall frame, the supporting frame should be immediately erected, braced, fixed to the slab and used as a temporary support for the eastern wall frame.

GI(c) details of the events surrounding the alleged contravention, e.g. incident details

Jarred MacGillivray Pty Ltd, through the partnership of Textbook Carpentry, was contracted to provide first fix carpentry services at 74 Fisher Street, Fullarton, South Australia.

On 9 August 2016, the deceased worker, was performing carpentry duties onsite as an apprentice carpenter.

At the time of the incident the worker was laying straps into the wall frames.

The worker was working near timber framework intended on comprising part of the eastern wall of a house.

The timber framework consisted of four wall frames secured to each other in a line 28 metres long.

Temporary propping was secured to the timber framework, but was not securely fixed to the slab, the ground or other immovable object.

1. the sequence in which wall frames are to be constructed and erected, such that where possible internal wall frames will be erected to provide additional bracing to external wall frames, prior to continuing to erect further external wall frames;
2. where possible, temporary bracing is placed at each "join" of the wall frames, and if not possible additional safety measures are to be put in place; and
4. all temporary bracing is to be secured to a stud or top plate and secured at the base to the slab, the ground, or some other immovable object.

3. as a matter of policy temporary bracing is used at all wall frames junctions;
4. all temporary bracing is secured to a stud or top plate and secured at the base to the slab, the ground, or some other immovable object; and
