

Enterprises in the state Industrial Relations System

SafeWork SA
information > advice > support

From 1 January 2010, South Australian businesses will operate under new national industrial relations (IR) laws. For the first time, South Australian private sector employers and employees will have the one set of IR laws to work with, providing employees with a simpler and more efficient IR system.

The full private sector, including the non-government community services sector, private schools and universities, will be covered by the Commonwealth Fair Work Act 2009.

The South Australian public sector, local government and prescribed Government Business Enterprises will remain in the state system and will be covered by the State Fair Work Act 1994.
